Visitors check out an eyeball sculpture by artist Tony Tasset following its unveiling in Pritzker Park. GETTY IMAGES

EYE SEE YOU

You'd have to be, well, blind not to notice the towering sculpture that was publicly unveiled Wednesday in Pritzker Park at State and Van Buren Streets. Simply titled "Eye," the piece begs for further explanation. Here are five key deets about "Eye," as reported by the Tribune.

The sculpture is the work of Oak Park artist Tony Tasset.

1,000x

2 Tasset modeled the piece on his own eyeball, magnified more than 1,000 times.

30 FEET

3 "Eye" is 30 feet tall and weighs 14,000 pounds, a lightweight compared with the 220,000-pound Bean.

4 The blue eye peers east on State Street.

5 It's scheduled to come down in October.

JULY 17 & 18

Those are the expected dates of the noisiest stunts and effects during filming of "Transformers 3" in Chicago. Filming, which started this weekend and is scheduled to run through Aug. 19, will include low-flying helicopters, skydivers, fireballs and gunfire, according to the Tribune.

Gum is turning high-tech

By Eric Johnson

FOR REDEYE

Jessica Schneider sometimes senses she's forgotten something while checking out at the grocery store.

Red wine? Got it. Artisanal cheese? Check.

Then her neurons fire: gum! Schneider, 26, never leaves a store without at least a couple of packs of 5 gum in her shopping bag.

"I actually chew gum the most when I am going out at night," the River North resident said. "It's probably because alcohol makes your breath taste funky, so it is an easy thing to do. You are being social and you don't have nasty breath."

Chew on this, gum poppers: More and more chompers like Schneider are snapping up gum in the pursuit of socially acceptable breath and exotic flavors—and the gum manufacturers are furiously inventing new ways to keep us chewing.

Consider just a few products to recently hit the market: 5 React, whose flavor every chewer perceives differently; Stride Shift, which changes from berry to mint or citrus to mint in mid-chew; and Trident Layers, which is essentially a sandwich made of flavors such as wild strawberry and tangy citrus.

"I think it is fair to say that consumers, over time, we all want and expect more," said Andy Pharaoh, the vice president of corporate affairs for Wrigley, which is based in Chicago. "We want to expect the [gum] brands we love to provide us with new and exciting things."

And the innovation is working. Sales of gum, mints and breath fresheners have grown by 10 percent since 2007 and are expected to top $1.5 billion by 2013, according to a recent Mintel report.

With a 200,000-square-foot Global Innovation Center for development and testing on the northern tip of Goose Island and about a 60 percent share of the global gum market,

Joe Krupa, a lab technician at Wrigley's Global Innovation Center, mixes a test flavor for Orbit gum.

CHEW ON THESE ANSWERS TO GUM QUESTIONS

There are more rumors about gum and its effects on the body than flavors of gum out there. OK, that may be a bit of hyperbole, but we had to check with the experts—North Side dentist Richard Leyba, Rush University surgeon Steven Bines and Wrigley VP of Corporate Affairs Andy Pharaoh—to clear up some sticky subjects. E.J.

Why does gum stick to the sidewalk?

"Just as water is wet, gum is sticky," Pharaoh said. "It's the nature of the product." The same factors that make gum so chewable for so long also make it impossible to clean up, he said, adding that Wrigley is working to develop a less adhesive gum. But for now, his advice is to wrap it up and throw it out.

Can the human body digest gum?

No way. "The human body doesn't have the protein or hydrolytic enzyme to break down the base of the gum," Bines said. "If you swallow gum, you will poop it out." And forget what you heard in grade school—it doesn't take a long time for gum to work its way through your body, he said.

Does chomping on gum curb the munchies?

Yes, according to researchers at Louisiana State University who found that people who chewed gum three times hourly after lunch ate fewer high-calorie snacks, CNN reported. The chewers also reported decreased feelings of hunger and cravings for sweet foods.

Does gum make you smarter?

Maybe. Researchers at the Baylor College of Medicine followed 108 eighth-grade math students and found that the gum-chewing students had a 3 percent increase in their standardized math test scores and better final grades compared with the non-chompers. Makes you think.

Are there health benefits to chewing gum?

Nothing beats an ol' fashioned brushing and flossing, but Leyba said in a pinch sugarless gum can stimulate the salivary flow and remove nasty food particles and bacteria. Just be sure to avoid sugar gums, which feed a particularly bad form of bacteria that promote tooth decay.

according to Reuters, Pharaoh called Chicago "the headquarters of gum innovation in the world." (For the record, Pharaoh chewed the Maui Melon Mint flavor of Orbit during his chat with RedEye.)

In September, Wrigley will go national with a new gum series called Extra Dessert Delights, whose flavors include key lime pie, mint chocolate chip and strawberry shortcake.

"These are for when you want something sweet but would prefer something that is 5 calories instead of 500," Pharaoh said.

How does Wrigley know which flavors will fly?

Developers look to a variety of industries—beverages, fragrances, dairy, ice cream, chocolate and even confections—to help determine flavor trends, Pharaoh said.

Gum preferences also tend to be hyper-local.

Chicagoans demand cinnamon gum, Pharaoh said, which would never sell in, say, France or the United Kingdom. On the other hand, black licorice gum, a Scandinavian fave, would founder stateside.

Some gum aficionados will try anything.

Aaron Cesario said he prefers exotic, fruity gum to mint varieties. And his favorite gum is Stride's Mega Mystery, a flavor that reveals itself only after it has been chomped.

"I definitely will buy gum to try something new, but my wife turns me on to most of my new flavors," said Cesario, 32, of Elburn.

Then there are the haters.

Ryan Ytterberg, 22, of Villa Park has chewed two pieces of gum in his entire life, for the first time at age 5 and for the final time at 13, and he just plain hates the stuff.

"I wonder if I had traumatic experience with it as a child," Ytterberg said. "You know how you get those weird connotations in your head and you don't like something for odd reasons?"

Ytterberg, whose first piece of gum was Fruit Stripe Zebra, never liked the texture, flavor or stickiness of the stuff.

"I didn't like seeing it on the ground. It just grosses me out," he said.

Other chewers balk only at the disposal of their favorite sweet treat.

Tait Machuca, 31, a pack-a-week chewer mostly for fresh breath, plans ahead for his gum needs.

"Most days I am driving around for work, so I keep napkins in my car so I can spit it in a napkin," the Lincoln Park resident said. "But it depends. If I am wasted at a bar, I will throw it on the floor somewhere or stick it under the bar." ERIC JOHNSON IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Test your chomping aptitude

How much do I love chomping on minty/fruity/mystery-flavored gum? I co-created a "club" at work. It's serious business too. First rule of Gum Club is everyone knows about it. Second rule is all who partake must contribute. And as long as it's gum, the donation counts. Want a ticket to your own gum club? Test your chew know-how on this true-false quiz.

Boi wonder

By Glenn Gamboa

NEWSDAY

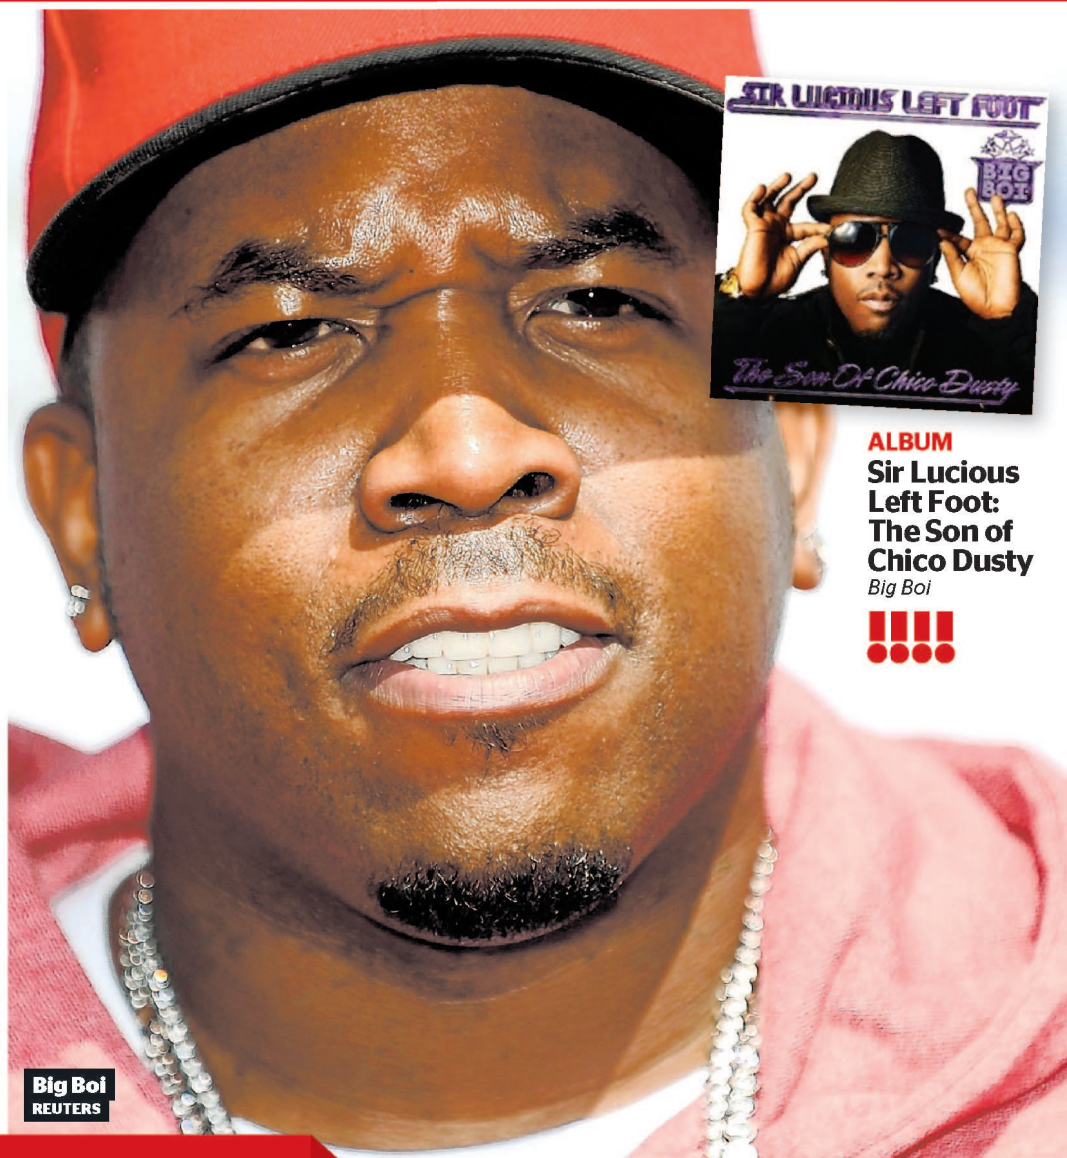

Big Boi may be the more grounded half of the groundbreaking hip-hop duo OutKast, but that doesn't mean he is lacking in ambition.

His solo album, "Sir Lucious Left Foot: The Son of Chico Dusty," is brimming with new ideas, new sounds and new jams that soon will be booming from a high-quality system near you.

"Be Still" combines Janelle Monae channeling a Supremes-era Diana Ross with a spacey-synth approximation of girl-group pop and Big delivering a wild set of rhymes. "Shutterbugg" features a gurgling vocal fashioned into a bass line and the kind of stream-of-consciousness rhyming that brings together

snippets of Soul II Soul and the '80s R&B nugget "You Are in My System." "General Patton" finds Big rhyming over a march and a military-styled choir, while "Shine Blockas" mines the deep-soul groove of a Harold Melvin and the Blue Notes sample.

Like the best of OutKast's output, "Sir Lucious Left Foot" puts familiar hip-hop sounds in new contexts. When Jamie Foxx arrives for "Hustle Blood," his breathy delivery makes him sound almost unrecognizable, like he's singing some delicate synth-pop ballad. He turns the currently cool clanging beats to make his point about how some in hip-hop have forgotten their roots on "You Ain't No DJ"—yet another sign of how well Big Boi has mastered the tools of his hip-hop trade.

The Glades

9 p.m. Sunday, A&E

In a TV landscape littered with cop shows, "The Glades" has two things working for it: gators and the irresistible charm of Matt Passmore (below). The Aussie actor plays Jim Longworth, a Chicago homicide detective transplanted in fictional Palm Glade, Fla. He's so cocky that his co-workers want to smack him, but so charismatic they don't. In the premiere, he gets pulled away from the golf course to investigate the murder of a woman found dead in a swamp. That's where the gators come in. They don't like Jim either, but you will. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

Murder on the Orient Express

8 p.m. Sunday, WTTW

The fussy Belgian detective Hercule Poirot is back in Agatha Christie's most famous mystery set on the infamous Orient Express train. The makers of this excellent adaptation change things up from the book and Oscar-winning 1974 movie, showing Poirot as an aging, reluctant crime-solver forced to investigate the murder of a mysterious passenger. David Suchet, who is on his way to filming every one of the 120 Poirot mysteries, masterfully shows the detective's weariness as he grapples with his own beliefs about how justice should be achieved. CURT WAGNER, REDEYE

Tiger Woods PGA Tour 11

PS3, Wii, Xbox 360

Tiger Woods golf games have been around for more than a decade, and they've all been pretty good—unlike Tiger himself, who has been great for most of that period. But this year, as Tiger struggles on the course (and off it), his namesake title delivers its best offering yet, definitely a great game. The aiming and swinging mechanics have been fine-tuned, practically eliminating the frustrating moments—if you make a mistake, it's easier to blame yourself and not the controller. Putting, in particular, feels just right. ROBERT MCGINTY, MCT

Aphrodite

Kylie Minogue

It's Kylie time again, America. Once a decade, it seems, Kylie Minogue, who has Madonna-size fame nearly everywhere else in the world, puts out an album that captures the American fancy. "Aphrodite" should be it. Packed with dance-floor anthems dreamed up with Madonna collaborator Stuart Price, "Aphrodite" surrounds Minogue's breathy vocals with catchy Euro-influenced dance pop that's both bass-heavy and synth-driven. Though the single "All the Lovers" lures people in, the title track is the knockout punch, where she revs up the attitude and gets all Yank-ish. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

NEW YORK Get the finalists from this year's "American Idol" together in one room for an interview, and a lot of things come out quickly.

Casey James knows how to turn on the charm. Siobhan Magnus is really into movies. And, yes, Michael Lynche really does talk a lot.

But Lee DeWyze remains pretty quiet. For much of the news conference, he sits in the middle of the room, looking around, kind of taking it all in. Only days after winning this year's "American Idol," the singer-songwriter from Mount Prospect doesn't seem like he believes it's all real.

It takes Lynche to reveal what a good guy DeWyze is to be around.

"L-Boogie here is so fun," Lynche says, pointing to DeWyze. "It's so funny to me that he always seems nervous because he's just the funniest guy ever."

If DeWyze is trying to remain calm in the middle of the "American Idol" media storm, it's because he is trying to stay focused on why he got into the contest in the first place.

'IDOL' TOUR IN CHICAGO

When: Aug. 28, 7:30 p.m.

Where: United Center

Tickets: $49.50-$75 at ticketmaster.com

"I want longevity in this business," he says later. "I'm not interested in just putting out one hit. This is the best opportunity I've ever had and a huge step in my life, and I owe it to the fans. I appreciate them, and I'm not going to disappoint them."

Between interviews, tour rehearsals and work on his major-label debut, DeWyze hasn't had a day off since winning "American Idol" in May, and he won't get one until after the tour wraps up in September.

"I'm tired, but I'm tired for a reason, so it's OK," DeWyze says. "There's a lot of people out there working, doing things they don't love to do, and they're more tired than I am. It's really hard for me to complain about anything right now."

Louis Svitek, who founded WuLi Records in Chicago with Ryan McGuire, his bandmate in The Virginia Gentlemen, says DeWyze has felt that way since he's known him.

"Lee's got a great voice, and he's a good guy," says Svitek, who signed DeWyze to WuLi Records when he was 17. "He deserves everything. He works hard at it, and now his dream is coming true."

DeWyze released an EP and an album on WuLi, including "Slumberland," which arrived in January as he was starting the "Idol" process.

DeWyze says he's happy with "Slumberland" and is glad more people are getting to hear it.

"I'm proud of everything I've done," he says. "But I'm definitely ready for people to hear me on a big scale. I think that will be a different sound and a representation of the type of artist I am now."

The rest of the class

More than the slipping ratings or the sliding sales, this year's class of "American Idol" finalists reflects the changing fortunes of the TV juggernaut. On the whole, they're a decent, competent bunch, destined to make decent, competent music. But they also reflect the judges' decision to value work ethic or flash and competence over unpredictability. When the biggest controversy of the finalists is whether Tim Urban should have slid across the stage, you know there's an issue. Here's a look at this year's finalists and their possible futures. GLENN GAMBOA, NEWSDAY

1. Crystal Bowersox

Most likely to: Record an album.

Other than Lee DeWyze, Bowersox is the only other current "Idol" finalist to have a contract. Her album is due out in late fall.

2. Casey James

Most likely to: Become the next big blues guitar star. Jonny Lang, you have been warned.

3. Michael Lynche

Most likely to: Hit Broadway. Big Mike and his Big Personality should be right at home there.

4. Aaron Kelly

Most likely to: Join Rascal Flatts. Seriously, wouldn't that be awesome? When Gary LeVox gets tired, Aaron could run onstage and fill in. Barring that, Aaron could very well end up being the biggest star in the bunch by taking over country music.

5. Siobhan Magnus

Most likely to: Become an indie-rock sensation. Dropping her last name and hooking up with a rock band that would stand up to her big screams could make her the American answer to Florence and the Machine or Marina and the Diamonds.

6. Tim Urban

Most likely to: Land a Disney TV franchise. Teflon Tim has the looks and the winning personality to become the next Zac Efron. Or at least the next Kevin Jonas.

7. Andrew Garcia

Most likely to: Become a critics' darling. Though Garcia never really caught on to how the show worked, he had a sweet voice and a knack for arranging that should be developed.

8. Katie Stevens

Most likely to: Join "Glee: The Next Generation." Her hyper-driven nature and precocious personality make her a shoo-in to be Rachel Berry's long-lost little sister.

9. Didi Benami

Most likely to: Play the next Liliith Fair. Despite the success of her artistic sisters Colbie Caillat and Ingrid Michaelson on the pop charts, Benami somehow didn't catch on with voters. She has some time to work that out.

Dead 'Pred'

Prehistoric beings? Aliens with dreadlocks? In a mysterious jungle, something is hunting an all-star team of killers from around the world, who all conveniently speak English! Adrien Brody, Alice Braga and Topher Grace star.

The buzz: Everyone has franchises that pass them by, and I confess to being a virgin to the "Predator" series that started in '87. Chances are most fans hope director Nimrod Antal ("Vacancy") can use a clever cast to take things back to the days of the original and its 1990 sequel—and pretend the two "Alien vs. Predator" movies never happened.

The verdict: "Predators" has the perfect amount of oozing, neon-green alien goo. This sci-fi actioner is creepy and just the right kind of retro, free of irony and able to deliver monster movie thrills and well-placed silliness to show no one's taking this other-worldly beast bloodbath too seriously. If everyone spent less time standing around and assessing the situation, they could have fleshed out the film's blunt attempt to suggest humans' quest for survival hinges on predatory instincts too. Whatever. Summer needs more movies closed with Little Richard songs and opened with strangers waking up to realize they're falling from the sky. MATT PAIS IS THE METROMIX

Weekend Revolution

By M. Kathleen Pratt

Revolution Brewing, the 5-month-old Logan Square operation with Josh Deth at the helm and Jim Cibak manning the tanks, is a brewery first and a restaurant second. The beer is good—very good—and we suspect it will only get better as time goes on. And the food's pretty good too, but it's there, in part, because you're going to want to hang out for more than one beer. The rehabbed, recycled pub space is inviting; the neighborhood vibe is going strong; and unhurried, affable service brings it all together. Now providing another reason to sit down and stay a while: brunch, which launched three weeks ago.

Server says: The eggs in a hole ($9) are a savory favorite, nestled inside a split brioche roll and served over a pool of cheddar ale soup. On the sweet side, try the cherry porter pancakes ($8).

We say: The malty pancakes, though a little light on the cherries, are as good as dessert once you top 'em with warm cinnamon butter, maple syrup and candied pecans. Also try the pork belly sandwich ($9)—just get ready to bust out the fork and knife, as the house-made brioche roll becomes unwieldy when stuffed with two fried eggs, thick cuts of pork belly, arugula, tomato and lots of garlicky mayo.

Feel free to pass on: The pancetta biscuits and gravy ($9). We started out happy but quickly became overwhelmed by the textural monotony of the thick sausage gravy—lots of thick sausage gravy.

Is it lunchtime yet? The lunch menu is available throughout the day, so you can choose from pizzas, sandwiches, salads and burgers. And who couldn't use a tub of bacon-fat popcorn ($4) at 10 a.m.?

Day drinking: You can't leave this place without having beer in some form, and brunch-appropriate beer cocktails make it easy. We fell for the IPAmosa ($6), a refreshing blend of bitter, tart and sweet made with blood orange puree and (obviously) IPA.

Crowd surfing: Early in the day, expect to share your space with the stroller set. After noon, the beer geeks and the rest of Logan Square move in.

Boost pedal power with recycled bikes

Watch out, drivers. This summer, it looks like the bicycles are in, and cars are out.

Not that I'm complaining. I love that people are embracing the functionality, thrift and ease of getting around on a bike. I use mine almost every day to ride to the gym, run errands and get to Millennium Park or other downtown destinations.

Even the state government is taking note: Gov. Pat Quinn signed bike legislation into law Monday to protect cyclists. The bills will penalize motorists who drive recklessly or too close to cyclists as well as create new "Share the Road" license plates, according to the Tribune.

With the state working to make biking safer, isn't it time you got some wheels? Here are three spots I'd recommend for you to find your perfect bike match. Bonus: These spots go the extra eco-mile—the bikes are used.

Working Bikes Cooperative

2434 S. Western Ave., workingbikes.org

One of the most well-known used bike shops in the city, Working Bikes collects old bikes, then repairs and sells them. The non-profit company uses the money earned to donate bikes to charitable organizations in Chicago as well as other countries. Just make sure it's open before you go—current hours are noon-7 p.m. Wednesdays and 10 a.m.-5 p.m. Saturdays.

The Recyclery

7628 N. Paulina St., therecyclery.org

Another nonprofit used bicycle collective, The Recyclery also offers several classes, including an eight-week build-a-bike program. Bikes are available at weekly Saturday sales, and more expensive bikes sometimes are posted on craigslist.com.

Chicago Police auction

2800 S. Western Ave., aceauctioneers.com

Several times a year, the Chicago Police Department auctions off abandoned and unclaimed items to the public, including bikes. While it's a long process, there are plenty of deals to be had on everything from expensive Treks to basic Schwinns. Just remember to bring cash—the auction doesn't accept any other forms of payment.

Chicago Police Supt. Jody Weis talks Friday at police headquarters about the murder of Officer Thor Soderberg. ALEX GARCIA/TRIBUNE

'Saddened beyond belief'

Officials charge man with shooting death of cop

Chicago Tribune

Chicago Police Supt. Jody Weis said Friday he "simply cannot understand" how the man charged with gunning down an officer "can have such a total disregard of life."

"The entire department is saddened beyond belief," Weis said hours after Bryant Brewer, 24, was charged. "The entire city should be enraged."

Brewer is accused of grabbing Officer Thor Soderberg's gun and fatally shooting him in the parking lot of a police facility in Englewood on Wednesday. He was shot and wounded by officers and remains at Advocate Christ Medical Center in Oak Lawn.

Brewer was denied bail in a hearing before Cook County Criminal Court Judge

Ramon Ocasio. Brewer did not appear in Central Bond Court today because he still was hospitalized.

Brewer

"I simply cannot understand how a person can have such a total disregard of life and for those who keep order on our streets that he could attack, disarm and then shoot and kill a uniformed police officer in broad daylight," Weis said at police headquarters.

Weis said Soderberg, 43, was leaving work at the police facility at 61st Street and Racine Avenue to play in a volleyball game. He was an instructor at the police training academy but had been deployed to a special task force aimed at combating youth violence.

"This is the time of the day where officers breathe a sigh of relief. Their tour is over and

POLICE SECURITY

Asked about what could be done about security at police parking lots, Chicago Police Supt. Jody Weis said police facilities have video surveillance, but he added that little could be done to prevent such attacks by people with little regard for human life. "There's really no level of security you can put up that will prevent a person like that from attacking someone," he said.

now they get to be with their families and their friends," Weis said. "However, because of the incomprehensible acts of a 24-year-old convicted felon, Officer Soderberg did not make it to that volleyball game. Officer Soderberg was killed by this vicious criminal."

Weis praised Englewood residents, saying 18 witnesses came forward after the shooting.

U.S., Russia complete spy swap

MOSCOW The United States and Russia completed a spy swap Friday, exchanging the agents on chartered planes at an airport in Vienna, Austria, a U.S. official and Russian media said.

The plane carrying 10 Russian agents, who were expelled from the United States on Thursday for intelligence gathering, landed at Moscow's Domodedovo Airport on Friday afternoon, the airport press office said.

The elaborately choreographed transfer—which took place while the planes sat on the ground for about an hour—was reminiscent of a scene from the Cold War.

In Washington, Attorney General Eric Holder said none of the 10 had passed classified information and therefore none was charged with espionage. CNN

Cleveland lashes out at LeBron James

CNN

MIAMI LeBron James arrived in the Miami area Friday, the morning after he spurned the Cleveland Cavaliers for the Miami Heat during a live broadcast on ESPN.

Southern Florida's newest VIP already is causing a stir. The Heat announced it has sold out its "currently available" season ticket inventory. After "extremely brisk" sales over the past couple of weeks, sales peaked "in a new intensity the last couple of days," Heat President of Business Operations Eric Woolworth said in a press release.

During "The Decision," ESPN switched briefly to sports bars in Miami and Cleveland to summarize the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat.

A few Cavs fans wasted no time in burning James jerseys in a small fire.

Cavs owner Dan Gilbert called James' decision a "cowardly betrayal" and a "shocking act of disloyalty" in a letter posted on the team's website Thursday night. He then added, in all capital letters:

"I PERSONALLY GUARANTEE THAT THE CLEVELAND CAVALIERS WILL WIN AN NBA CHAMPIONSHIP BEFORE THE SELF-TITLED FORMER 'KING' WINS ONE. You can take it to the bank."

APP quest

3 mobile programs
we'd like

from the Tour de France

By Ryan Smith
FOR REDEYE

Wanna follow along with Lance Armstrong and crew at the Tour de France? There's an app for that. In fact, there are several handy applications for tech-savvy cycling fans—including a map app by Bing that provides a real-time aerial view of the race.

That's cool and all, but RedEye dreamed up a few Tour-centric apps we'd like to see on our next visit to the Apple store. RYAN SMITH IS A REDEYE SPECIAL CONTRIBUTOR.

Who's Lance Armstrong Dating?

Kate Hudson, Sheryl Crow, possibly an Olsen twin—it's hard to find a blonde in Hollywood that Mr. LiveStrong hasn't been romantically connected to in one gossip mag or another. That's why we need an app to tell us who exactly Lance is dating right now. Think of it as a TMZ for one.

iDope Test

There is so much doping in cycling that it feels like we have to play a game of performance-enhancing Clue to guess who is clean. That's why we'd buy an app to give us definitive proof of purity. The only thing we ask is it doesn't involve a urine test—no iPhone deserves that kind of treatment.

Don't Dress Like a Cyclist

Few of us are bold enough to wear the colorful, skin-hugging jerseys and shorts that tour riders don, but that doesn't stop a small group of brave folks from squeezing into unflattering clothes. Here's how the app would work: You submit a picture, and it judges whether you can pull off a spandex look.

Enter a number between 1 and 9 in the empty squares. The clues are the numbers in the white circles that give the sum of the solution numbers: above the line are across clues; below the line are down clues. Thus, a clue of 3 will produce a solution of 2 and 1, and a 5 will produce 4 and 1, or 2 and 3, but, of course, which squares they go in will depend on the solution of a clue in the other direction. No digit can be repeated in a solution. Answer at redeye.chicago.com/puzzles. EDITED BY MICHAEL MEPHAM

'DESPICABLE' FORMULA

Animators, listen up. There's no excuse for cartoons to be anything but 100 percent original. Animation, duh, is the only realm of movie storytelling not bound by real life, where mermaids can sing with oddly accented crabs under the sea, or where coyotes can get hit by anvil after anvil and survive. It's where sponges in square pants can work at fast-food restaurants, for Pete's sake! We don't mean to blame "Despicable Me," the 3-D animated flick out this weekend, for Hollywood's creative slump. This new movie, in which Steve Carell voices a super-villain-turned-adoptive-father, actually looks entertaining. Carell's ubiquitousness doesn't annoy us just yet, and anything featuring Jemaine Clement from "Flight of the Conchords" as a overalls-wearing alien probably is as rad as a Hiphopotamus concert. Still, points deducted for the parts we've already seen in the trailers that make us go, "Haven't we seen this before?" ARIEL ALEXOVICH, REDEYE

Fisher and Underwood

Underwood's surprise

Carrie Underwood is about to be off the market. Her wedding to NHL player Mike Fisher is set for Saturday in Georgia, usmagazine.com reports. While Underwood worked with a wedding planner to take care of the details of the big day, her fiancé was given the task of coordinating the honeymoon. "It's a surprise. I have no clue where we are going, which is nice. I know it will be warm, that's about it," she told the website.

Judd vs. miners

Kentucky coal miners' top priority? Pushing for mountaintop mining. Their campaign? A topless photo of Ashley Judd. Judd (below), a Kentucky native, spoke out last month against mountaintop mining, the New York Daily News reports. In response, a group of coal miners hung a poster at a local golf tournament that read: "Ashley makes a living removing her top. Why can't coal miners?" The accompanying photo is Judd topless but covering her breasts for a 2003 magazine shoot.

Hit them baby one more time

Ryan Murphy, the creator of "Glee," has settled the rumors about a possible upcoming Britney Spears (above) episode, according to New York magazine. It's all true, he reportedly says. So expect some red latex outfits and plenty of up-tempo pop.

Pandora plus

It's back. "Avatar" will return to U.S. theaters Aug. 27, the Los Angeles Times reported. The movie will include an additional eight minutes and will screen only in Digital 3-D and IMAX 3-D. The additional footage includes "new creatures and action scenes," director James Cameron said in a statement.

No fear (of aging)

Drew Barrymore (below) isn't ruling out plastic surgery one day. "I don't want to be vain or fearful, and I don't think I'll do anything, but if I want to do something, I will," she tells Elle magazine in its August issue. "From my perspective, there's no reason to be afraid of aging, because if you age, you're lucky! The alternative is death."
